It has probably cured more cases of Piles, Rheamatism, sore Eyes, Barns, Tumors, Sait Rheam, Quincy, Sore Throat, &c., then all the pupular medicines in use; and I am positive in Liver Complaint, Scrofula, Asthma, Coughs, Consumptions, Spinal Diseases, Worms, Broken or Sore Breasts, Headache and the like, nothing can be found with physicians or druggists that is so good, and the cure so quick. In all complaints peculiar to females especially, its efficacy appears al most miraculsus.

FOR PRESIDENT, STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS, of Illinois FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

R. M. T. HUNTER, of Virginia.

TUESDAY, ; : : DECEMBER 16, 1851.

Kossuth's Ovation, ELOQUENCE, AND MISSION The reception of Kossuth at Southampton, Manchester, Birmingham, and on last Saturday at New York, exceeded the displays of Roman tri umphs. The ovations of Crassus and Pompey, with the tributary wealth of Asia Minor, of Julius Cresar from the five years' conquests in Gaul, Germany, and Britain, have been exceeded by the voluntary and spontaneous public de monstrations to the Hungarian exile freed from his Asiatic prison. Hundreds of thousand form processions to greet the editor of the Pesth Journal, the outlaw of the Czar and Camarilli

Talleyrand was so cautious as to rarely converse in the English language, with which he was conversant, on any matter relating to his mission.

The revolution of 1832 in Poland, of '48 i France, has sent forward other exiles, but they have rarely attempted public speaking in English, and never with marked success. Louis Blanc, noted in Paris for popular eloquence, addressed a meeting in London last month in his native tongue, and has never ventured upon the less euphonious but irregular Saxon. Lafayette and Gallatin became Americanized by association and habits before their appearance to address public meetings in English. The eloquent Soule passed through a professional education in America before his appearance at the bar in New Orleans. Major Tochman, knows to many of our citizens personally, was long preparing by association and written lectures for his debut as an oral debater.

He certainly deserves that distinction for his serices to his party, to say nothing of the fit ess which several years of experience in the Legislature, abilities of a very high order, and great business talents and industry give him. Major Hooe has won golden opinions from all true Democrats about here by his course during this ession. No man probably has done as much towards constructing and maintaining throughout all the vicissitudes of the late Senatorial contest that rigid and inflexible organization of the Democracy of the Legislature which has won them so much honor before the country. Sagacious, farsighted, prudent, firm and true as 1 60, 3 55, 2 55, (1 10, frosted,) 2 75, 3 55, 3 45-al steel to his party interests, he has shown himself in the late crisis, as he proved himself last year in the other House, a leader whom the at the following rates: $3 50,680,290,295,370,335, Democrats could follow with the greatest safety and confidence. But for his vigorous and esolute interference on one or two occasions, I have been rightly informed, the organizaion of the party would have been broken and all their best interests sacrificed by Whig manœuvering or indiscreet counsels of some injudicious Democrats. I should like to see him elected to preside over the Senate. He has every qualification in the way of a clear head, a thorough knowledge of parliamentary rule, considerable experience as a legislator, perfect self-possession, and a pleasing and graceful address, to enable him to fill the chair of the Senate with the greatest efficiency. In the Wrong Pew.

"Brother A-, here is a place o worship that we have not seen, I think. "True," says Brother A-, "and service appears to be going on; let us step in and hear the discourse.' Stepping up to the door, the box-keeper arrested them for a moment at his en-

"Your tickets, gentlemen."

"Tickets?" quotha the parsons.

"Exactly, gentlemen."

"Why, is this an especial meeting? Do you not always admit brothers of the

"Oh, certainly," says the polite doorkeeper-Lord rest his memory, and keep it green-"if you belong to the profession, of course you may pass." And in the parsons went.

The lower tier was crowded-the "Hypocrite" was the play, and that la-mented son of Momus, Yankee Hill, was doing up old Brother Mawworm. The two parsons barely got a glimpse of the tage, when Mawworm was delivering his amous sermon. The curtain presently fell, and the orchestra tuned up. "Brother A-, while the choir is performing, suppose we go up stairs, says one. "Very well," says the other, and up they went.

Ascending to one of the upper saloons, they were no less amazed than astonished, to find a great bevy of young bucks and elegantly dressed young ladies, standing around the saloon in very familiar dis course, and committing strange vagarie for a religious congregation.

"Why, I believe, upon my conscience," says one of the rustic parsons, "that yonder is a place where they deal out strong "Truly," says the other, "they appear to be imbibing strong drink there; let us go in, and see whether this be a part of the rites here, or what."

While probing around, the two parsons saw many strange things; and finally some of the dissolute young bloods let off a volley of very strong language to another, and this about floored the parsons. "Brother B-," says one, "surely we've made some mistake here."

"I think so, Brother A-___. If this be a church, it is, I verily believe, the church of the Evil One, and that we are now at the very gates of his abode."

By this time the unsophisticated country gentlemen began to suspicion pretty strongly that they were in one of those awful places known as a play-house, and the parsons fell a victim to his ignorance or temerity. On the contrary, finding themselves in the very presence of the DEALERS IN CUTLERY AND HARDWARE, terrible critter they had probably read and heard so much about, they determined to investigate, and see into the entire detail of the place. And this they did, amid much merriment and excited wonderment of the depraved characters who were formerly permitted to hold their levees in the upper tiers of the Boston play-houses. Presently the parsons beat a retreat. The ladies got a little too familiar, the fumes of the cigar smoke and alchohol rather "flaxed" them, and they made straight coat tails for the door, through which they bolted, to the evident great glee of the door-keeper.

The accidental visit of our parsons had at least two good effects-the abrogation of "third tier" visitors to Boston theatres, and the suppression of the sale therein of ardent spirits; thus rendering a play-house a popular place of amusement which even ministers of the most reputable Christian sects are now afraid to visit--for at that day, no parson, fully initiated church member, or otherwise accredited, pious and believing Christian, could possibly dare to enter such a place, against which the church had so signally set its ban; and as the march of science, yea, common sense, has finally asserted an incontestable right for man to investigate before condemning, we find our play-houses visited by clergymen, as should be the case. If they find matter to condemn, they should do so. A civilized people require standard amusements, and as it is the duty of our municipal authorities to investigate all places suspicioned of infringing upon laws, it is no less the duty of our retained soul-savers to investigate and deprecate all matters and places calculated to corrupt our morals and good manners. Well, such an issue was brought about by two parsons visiting the old Tremont .-As one of them left the house that night, said he to his brother:

"I trust that I shall live to see the day when I may be instrumental in sanctifying this house. I feel that I myself shall perform in this temple!"

So he did. In course of a few years after the incident above related, Parson - actually preached a sermon in Foreign and Domestic Hardware the old Tremont Theatre, then and now called the Temple.
